☼ CASK BEER

Cask-conditioned ale is beer that undergoes a second fermentation in the cask from which it is served. This second fermentation naturally carbonates the beer. Cask ale is typically served cool but not cold and with less carbonation than modern CO2-dispensed ales and lagers. The result is a beer with nuance and complexity that is also refreshing and drinkable. Subtle malt character is one of a number of flavor attributes that can be more discernable and enjoyable in cask ale.

ADMIRAL MALTINGS

ALAMEDA CALIF.

OUR CALL TO ARMS NO MALT. NO BEER.

Admiral Maltings partners with California farmers to source quality, local grain that we floor malt to produce exceptional, hand-crafted malt. Our malt helps brewers and distillers make great beer and spirits, enables them to operate more sustainably, and deepens their connection to local agriculture.
